

Veterans honored in ceremonies here

A small crowd turned out for the Veterans' Day activities in front of Granite City Hall Friday and listened to a speech by Lt. Col. Paul Bolen, a 1900 computer services squadron commander at Scott Air Force Base.

Bolen, who has received the Air Force Meritorious Service Medal and the Air Force Commendation Medal with one oak leaf cluster, said he was appreciative of the honor of having been chosen to speak before the crowd.

"THIS IS a day for all Americans to take stock in what it means to be an American," he said. "It is a day for all of us to openly express our admiration for our country, a day to celebrate the unity and purpose of our people who have been the primary strength of this nation, and to remember those who sacrificed themselves to maintain our country's freedom."

Bolen cited the millions of men and women who had given their lives from the American Revolution down to the most recent killings in Beirut and Grenada. "In combat, they struggled and hoped and prayed they would live, but they fought and died. Often they were young and life was full of promise and expectation of the future. Of all the waste and destruction, the loss of our nation's people, just at the point when many are ready to make some other contribution, is the greatest cost of war."

"This day has different meanings for many. To some, it's just a chance for a day off...but if you are one of the many that served, or one who lost a friend or loved-one, the day has a different meaning for you. You understand this holiday."

"WE MUST all work to solve our problems," he said. "We must make a commitment to our nation's future. We must be willing to keep our nation strong. We must be willing to assume the risk of future sacrifices, that we too, may have to give our lives for the preservation of our heritage."

"And we must remember the soldiers today, the 30 million living veterans and over 14 million deceased, who served in our armed forces, with honor and gratitude, the debt we owe them — who first won and have since kept America free — so that America will continue to be the hope and envy of the world."

After the speech, wreaths were placed on the veterans' memorial in front of city hall and a military unit from Scott Air Force Base delivered a 21-gun salute.

THE CEREMONY followed a parade from 24th Street and Madison Avenue to the city hall. Marching were units from Scott Air Force Base, American Legion, VFW and Auxiliary, Junior Amvets, Scouting Units and the Granite City High School Band and pom pom and rifle squad.

Amvets Post 204 also conducted services Friday in the Alpine Village Shopping Center in Madison.

WREATHS PLACED. Mrs. Lorraine Groves and Roland Fiedler from the Disabled American Veterans Post 53 and Auxiliary are among the representatives of veterans' organization who placed wreaths on the veterans' memorial in front of city hall during Veterans' Day ceremonies Friday morning.

Top Superfund priority here

By GEORGEANN MCGEE

of the Press-Record

State officials will hand deliver this week a preliminary report on Granite City's hazardous lead waste pile to the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) with a request the site be given top priority for a federal Superfund evaluation.

The Superfund listing is reserved for hazardous waste sites to be given national priority for federally-funded clean up operations.

THE ILLINOIS Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) also will ask federal officials to expand its Superfund investigation to include off-site Quad-City areas where portions of the pile may have been deposited. Those sites apparently include Venice and Eagle Park Acres lots and alleys, where evidence of heavy casings from the waste pile were found.

Lead levels up to thousands of times the amount in other communities were found in Venice and Venice Township in soil samples taken last month by the IEPA. Lead intoxication has been associated with tremors, retardation and loss of memory. Low exposure could cause possible nerve, kidney and reproductive disorders.

State Rep. Sam Wolf (D-Granite City) Thursday confirmed the state plans and said he is delighted the state will ask the waste pile be nominated for the Superfund list. "As far as the IEPA is concerned, it will give the site number one priority in the state," Wolf said.

LAST SEPTEMBER, Wolf volunteered to sponsor a special revenue bill to support the state's 10 percent share of any Superfund cleanup costs. An unofficial estimate of $20 million has been given for the removal of the pile, however, the cost would vary according to the cleanup method selected, the state representative said.

The site is located near 15th and State streets, a few blocks from the downtown area. The approximately two-and-a-half story, 200,000-ton pile spreads over three acres on property owned by Taracorp, Inc., a lead fabrication firm. The company purchased the property in 1979 from NL Industries (formerly National Lead). The waste pile might have been started as early as 1930.

JAMES J. MALONEY, IEPA spokesman, said preliminary data on the pile, collected by the state, will be turned over to EPA regional headquarters in Chicago sometime early this week. The information will contain a four-page federal questionnaire used to determine the eligibility of sites for the Superfund list.

According to the state's own informal evaluation, it appears the pile qualifies for the federal list, Maloney said. He is not sure, however, that the EPA will go along with the state's recommendation that lead-contaminated sites in Venice and Venice Township also should be considered for federal cleanup funds.

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT will conduct a separate investigation of the lead situation here before making a decision on the state's request for the Superfund nomination.

Meanwhile, the IEPA and the Illinois Department of Public Health will continue their field research to determine the extent of lead con-

Blood testing for lead is underway

The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (IEPA) has issued health precautions for Venice and Eagle Park Acres residents living near lead-contaminated lots and alleys.

The Illinois Department of Public Health also launched today a blood-testing program to check the lead intake of residents in those areas.

ALTHOUGH the warnings are intended for those residing near the eight sites in Venice and the home site in Eagle Park Acres where the high lead levels were discovered, the IEPA plans to test other lots and alleys likely to yield the same type of readings.

The sites spurring the health precautions are: the north and south alleys in the 200 block of Granville Street; the 600 block of Broadway near St. Mark's Church; the alley in the 700 block of Broadway; alleys in the 800 and 900 blocks of Hampden Street; Slough Road near Kerr Island; alley between the 1300 blocks of Oriole and Klein streets; and Terry Street in Eagle Park Acres.

HEALTH OFFICIALS recommend that parents in those areas prevent small children from playing especially in the yard, on the side and in dirty hands or dirty objects into their mouths. Everyone in those areas are being asked to thoroughly wash their hands and faces before eating.

NORMAL SPORTS or play activities on dirt surfaces need not be curtailed, according to the state agencies. Residents, however, are being encouraged to plant grass or other ground cover on areas where dirt is exposed.

Health authorities are asking residents to cooperate with the blood-testing program in order to decide if more extensive testing is required. Health department teams will be visiting the neighborhoods involved and asking for test volunteers. Free blood tests also are available at the state's lead poisoning control office at 4700 Nameoki Road.

THE BLOOD testing program and health precautions are similar to those given to Granite City residents last April, when a soil sampling program also revealed high lead levels in residential areas.

In the follow-up blood testing program in Granite City, the health department is

Cletus Bedwell dies

Cletus Bedwell, 53, of 800 Missouri Ave., South Roxana, retired Chouteau Township tax collector and steelworker, died at 5:40 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 10, at Memorial Hospital in Alton, following a lengthy illness. He was in public service in Chouteau Township 38 years.

Walter "Dick" Sparks, supervisor of Chouteau Township, said of Mr. Bedwell, "The township has lost one of the finest officials it ever had. He was respected and well liked by every one of the board members. It is a loss we all feel very deeply."

Mr. Bedwell served 22 years as tax collector for the township and officially submitted his resignation, on the advice of his doctor, at the March 22, 1983, meeting. The resignation became effective May 1, 1983.

He also served 16 years as a Chouteau Town board member prior to being elected tax collector and for 17 years was an elected official of United Steelworkers of America, Local 3643. Mr. Bedwell retired from Laclede Steel Co. after 30 years of service.

He was a charter member of the South Roxana Fire Department, having served as president, captain and assistant fire chief, and was a

Local program teaches GC students about banking

Typically, people have had to go to banks to learn about banking. The transition is being made, however, with banking representatives assisting local teachers with the technical aspects of banking.

This is evidenced by the "Banking is..." program which First Granite City National Bank continues to present as a public service to the students at Granite City High School. Thomas E. Holloway, executive vice-president, made the presentation of 1983-84 educational materials to the school Oct. 28.

Receiving the multimedia filmstrip unit on behalf of Granite City High School was Gilbert Walmsley, principal.

IN MAKING the presentation, Holloway said, "The program 'Banking is...' gives the students first-hand experience with the basic banking activities they will use throughout their lives.

"Writing a check, applying for a loan, computing interest and using a bank's services are things most adults take for granted. We have done them all our lives, but these activities must be learned, and it is the intent of the 'Banking is...' program to make it both a meaningful and enjoyable endeavor.

"Many adults require banking by trial and error; but, in today's world of advancing technology, this is no longer a satisfactory solution. Ninety percent of all financial transactions are made by check and the American public will write more than 37 billion checks this year. Yet, in spite of this, statistics show that less than 85 percent of the graduating seniors know how to write a check properly. So, it is easy to see that check-writing is an activity that students should understand if they are to take their places in the financial community.

"WE HOPE OUR continuing sponsorship of this program will help give students a more thorough and systematic understanding of these basic banking activities and the new financial services that are available, as well as help them in the management of their personal financial affairs."

In addition, Holloway pointed out that as part of the program, officers of the bank are available for a follow-up classroom question-and-answer session. The bank's representatives for the 1983-84 school year will be Holloway, Randy Vollmar, assistant vice-president of the consumer loan department, and Albert Hudzik, assistant vice-president of the financial services department.

Space heater requires care and precautions

By WILLIAM L. KEMPINER
Director, Illinois

Public Health Department
Many people are considering the purchase of space heaters in an attempt to economize on fuel. If you are one of these, be aware of some of the problems as well as the advantages associated with space heaters.

A common hazard is that of fire. A person may stand so close to the heater that his clothing catches fire, or a heater may tip over and ignite a drape or a piece of furniture.

Another common hazard is burns. Many severe burns have been suffered when children and older people with unsteady footing fell against space heaters.

The size of the space in which you plan to place the heater should determine the size heater you buy. Don't buy one that is so large it will be within three feet of drapes, furniture or traffic patterns.

Be sure to look for a heater that has a guard around the frame. Of course, this is no protection against severe burns if someone falls on the heater; caution family members not to stand or walk too close to it.

Never try to start or stoke a smoldering coal or wood fire in a space heater, a stove or a fireplace by putting gasoline or other flammable liquid on it. The vapors from flammable liquids can ignite, travel up the fuel stream to the can and explode.

One gallon of gasoline can equal the explosive power of 66 sticks of dynamite. Even using flammable liquids in the same room with a heater or stove can create a hazard. The vapors settle near the floor, flow from one part of the room to another, and may be ignited by an open flame or distant spark.

If you own a gas heater, be sure you know how to light it. Don't turn on the gas until you have a match ready, and don't give gas time to accumulate.

If you fail to light the heater on the first try, allow enough time for the gas to dissipate before you try again. If you smell gas, turn off all the controls and open a window or door. This same procedure should be followed if the pilot light goes out on a gas stove, or oven or furnace.

Few people actually burn to death in fires. The smoke — or its poisonous gases — kill most people who die in home fires.

The release of odorless, tasteless, colorless gases prior to actual flame, or in the absence of an actual fire, explains why many victims die in their sleep unaware of any danger.

Electric space heaters require extra care. Never touch one if you're standing in water or if any part of your body is wet.

An electric heater should never be placed in a bathroom, near a washbasin, shower or sink, or in the laundry room. If you have no choice and need the heat, keep the heater as far away from any source of water as you can.

Three-wire grounding cords and three-wire grounding plugs are recommended for use with electric heaters to provide added safety against shock hazard in case of an electrical fault in the heater.

'Education Week' in Venice schools

By VALERIE EVENDEN
of the Press-Record

A parents' luncheon, open house, pep rally and an assembly program are among the activities planned this week in the Venice School District to observe American Education Week, it was announced today by Superintendent of Schools Robert N. Vickers.

Starting today and continuing through Friday, Nov. 18, the "Education Week" observance being noted nationwide is based on the theme, "A Strong Nation Needs Strong Public Schools."

Today in the Venice public schools, teachers are distributing American Education Week pennants to students. Faculty members and youngsters, alike, will wear the pennants throughout this week, Supt. Vickers advised.

Classroom lessons on Tuesday will emphasize the week's theme, the administrator said.

Open house at the schools is planned from 3 a.m. until 3 p.m. Wednesday, with parents invited to join their children for lunch at specific times.

Kindergarten through third grade parents are being asked to assemble at 10:45 a.m. Wednesday in the cafeteria, with lunch being served from 10:55 a.m. until 11:30 a.m.

Parents of fourth through sixth graders should be present at 11:30 a.m. for lunch being served from 11:30 until 12:05 p.m.; and seventh and eighth grade students and parents will assemble at 11:55 a.m. and lunch from 12:05 p.m. to 12:45 p.m.

Adults attending will be charged $1.65 and the menu will consist of hamburgers, French fries, cream style corn and peach cobbler.

School Colors Day is Thursday and a grade school pep rally is scheduled at 1 that afternoon.

An assembly program for kindergarten through eighth grade pupils at 1:15 p.m. Friday, Nov. 18, will feature the Venice High School Speech Choir, it was announced by Venice Principal John C. Rush.

Faculty committee members arranging the week-long activity schedule, include Linda Cottrill, Althea Cross, Georgia Faltwell, Marieann Hankla, Irene Orr, Sina Reeves, Mattie Richard and Clarence E. Hand, assistant principal.

Bill eases restrictions on corporations in state

The Illinois General Assembly has sent the Governor a bill, proposed by Secretary of State Jim Edgar, substantially revising the state corporations law to reduce costs and red tape for companies seeking to incorporate in Illinois.

"Illinois is recognized as one of the nation's leading commercial and financial centers," Edgar said. "However, the regulations and paperwork required by the current 50-year-old corporations act discourage many companies from incorporating in Illinois."

"The new act, which is the product of two years of work by a special advisory committee to the secretary of state, updates the law and removes costly red tape and delays. As a result, Illinois will become an even more attractive place in which to do business."

The legislation had the support of the Illinois and Chicago Bar Associations.

If signed by the Governor, the legislation would go into effect July 1, 1984.

The secretary of state's office is responsible for regulating Illinois' 155,000 domestic and 30,000 foreign corporations. Illinois ranks second in the nation in corporate revenue collection, collecting $45 million in annual corporation taxes and filing fees in 1982.

Major changes made by the legislation include:

—Reduces red tape, expense and delays for companies wishing to incorporate in Illinois.

—Permits modern financial arrangements.

—Allows a majority shareholders, sale of corporate

Drop in body temperature can prove deadly

By W. L. KEMPINERS
Director, Illinois Department of Public Health

As the cost of heating fuel goes up, the number of accidental hypothermia cases goes up.

More and more people are lowering their thermostats to save money at the risk of a dangerous drop in their internal body temperature.

What is accidental hypothermia? Hypothermia is a drop in internal body temperature to 95 degrees Fahrenheit or under. This can be deadly if not detected promptly and treated properly. As many as 50,000 people die each year from hypothermia.

Hypothermia usually occurs over a period of a few days or several weeks. Even mildly cool temperatures of 60 to 65 degrees Fahrenheit can trigger hypothermia.

However, a drop in internal body temperature also can occur rapidly if a person falls into icy water or is exposed to freezing weather without proper clothing.

A drop in internal body temperature can happen to anyone, but the elderly are more at risk.

One reason older men and women are particularly susceptible to hypothermia is that their bodies often do not adjust to changes in temperature as quickly as they used to. They may not be aware they are gradually getting colder.

A person is especially vulnerable if he or she is sick or unable to move around well, or does not shiver or react to cold normally.

When body temperature drops below 94 or 95 degrees, the blood vessels near the heart and the body narrow to reduce heat loss. Muscles begin to tighten to make heat.

If the body continues to cool, shivering will start and continue until the temperature drops to about 90 degrees F. Then it gets into the danger area.

If the body temperature drops below 90, a life-threatening situation exists.

Several signs can aid in identifying possible victims, but not even a doctor can tell exactly how vulnerable a person might be.

Hypothermia can deprive people of judgment and reasoning power because the cold affects the brain. Signs to look for are forgetfulness, drowsiness, slurred speech and a change in appearance, such as a purplish face.

A victim will have a weak pulse, a slow heartbeat and very slow, shallow breathing. Coma is probable if the body temperature drops to or below 90 degrees.

If you should notice these symptoms in another person, take his or her temperature. If it is 95 degrees or below, call a doctor or ambulance, or take the victim directly to a hospital.

Do not give a hypothermia victim a hot shower or bath; it could cause sudden shock. If the victim is alert, give him small quantities of warm food or drink but nothing alcoholic.

Don't try to treat hypothermia at home. The condition should be treated in a hospital.

The state health department recommends that in the homes and apartments of those more than age 65, the temperature should be kept above 65 degrees.

For those more than 75, or those who are bedridden, the thermostat should be kept at 70 degrees or above. Several layers of warm clothing should be worn when going out in cold weather.

Those who have further questions about accidental hypothermia should consult their physician or contact the Illinois Department of Public Health, Division of Disease Control, 535 W. Jefferson, Springfield 62761.

Teacher evaluation, upgrading to be topics

Children need the best teachers they can get — but often the best teachers are working at some other job that pays more or offers more career satisfaction than classroom teaching, the Illinois Association of School Boards said today.

Ways to attract first-rate teachers into the profession and keep them in the classroom will be among the issues considered by representatives from school boards around the state on Saturday, Nov. 19, in Chicago.

Resolutions passed by the board members will become official policy for the IASB, a voluntary association that advises school boards on all aspects of school governance and represents their views before the state legislature.

The voting will be part of a four-day statewide conference of school officials sponsored jointly by IASB, the Illinois Association of School Administrators and the Illinois Association of School Business Officials.

The resolutions on upgrading teaching as a career are the result of a study conducted by the State Board of Education and an IASB committee. They include support for the following principles:

1. More rigorous standards for admission into and retention in teacher certification programs and an assessment of the quality of candidates recommended for certification.
2. Teacher salaries that are performance-based, market-sensitive, professionally competitive, and tied to an effective evaluation system.
3. Development of career ladders for teachers that distinguish among the beginning instructor, the experienced teacher, and the master teacher.

4. Exploration of innovative ways for school districts to address shortages in mathematics and science — for example, by allowing temporary certification for individuals skilled in fields where teachers are in short supply.

5. Incentives, such as grants and loans, to attract outstanding students to teaching profession, especially in fields where shortages exist.

A related resolution supports legislation that would provide for three full years of probationary teaching service in a district before tenure is granted. Two years is the current probationary period.

Other resolutions would:

- A. Urge legislators not to pass any laws that place mandates on local districts without providing funding, and urge the governor to veto any such legislation that reaches his desk.

B. Support the right and responsibility of a local school board to determine what curriculum materials it will use, and call on the IASB to help districts formulate policies for selection of materials and procedures for handling challenges from outside interest groups.

C. Support legislation studying the advantages and disadvantages of lengthening the school year to provide more learning time.

The conference, headquartered at Chicago's Palmer House Nov. 19 through 21, also will feature speakers, exhibits, panel sessions and service clinics for board members and administrators.

Speakers will include Albert Shanker, president of the American Federation of Teachers; Art Linkletter, television and radio star turned crusader against drug abuse; Illinois Superintendent of Education Donald Gill; Governor James Thompson; and Tennessee Governor Lamar Alexander.

Alexander is nationally known in the field of education for implementing a basic skills program in elementary schools in his state and for his involvement in the issue of merit pay for teachers.

More than 60 panel sessions dealing with issues ranging from finance to use of surplus buildings to high technology will begin on Saturday and continue through Monday, Nov. 21.

An annual feature of the conference, training sessions for new board members, has taken on additional importance this year, since the Nov. 8 election left many school boards with a majority of newly elected members. Sessions will cover duties, responsibilities and functioning of school boards.

Activities will begin on Friday with a communications workshop sponsored by the Illinois Chapter, National School Public Relations Association, and IASB workshops on policy development and collective bargaining.

The ISB workshop, titled "Now that we've got their attention," will focus on how schools can respond constructively to recent national publicity.

In addition, the State Board of Education will maintain a service facility staffed with experts to offer consultation on local problems.

The annual conference offers an opportunity for school board members and administrators to share ideas and information with their colleagues and to seek the help of specialists in many aspects of school management.

State's top medical leader to discuss malpractice, health care cost matters

The increasing number of medical malpractice suits being filed and new efforts to curtail health care costs will be the subject of an address by the state's top medical spokesman on Tuesday, Nov. 15.

Dr. Robert P. Johnson, president of the 16,000-member Illinois State Medical Society (ISMS), will be the featured speaker at a meeting of the Madison County Medical Society at 6:30 p.m. at the Sunset Hills Country Club, Edwardsville.

In commenting on medical malpractice, Dr. Johnson will discuss the rising number of malpractice suits and the increasingly high awards sought by the plaintiffs.

Dr. Johnson also will address new approaches to health care cost containment, such as the implementation of "diagnosis-related" payment for hospital services provided under Medicare. ISMS efforts to improve the state's system of medical discipline also will be discussed by Dr. Johnson.

This appearance is part of the annual "ISMS President's Tour" of county medical societies throughout the state.

Urge action on lead problems

We are glad the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (IEPA) wants to see a high Superfund priority go to the lead problem in the Quad-City area and hope the U.S. EPA will see the seriousness of the situation here.

Meanwhile, we believe it is important that Quad-City area residents who suspect they may have come into contact with high lead levels to take advantage of free blood testing by the Illinois Department of Public Health. Blood tests are being conducted free at 4700 Namooki Road and an appointment may be made by calling 931-4545.

We do not know how serious the lead threat is. Obviously, thousands of Quad-City area residents have lived long and full lives in this area, despite exposure to lead. However, the warnings reaching us are enough to cause concern. Lead can have adverse effects on many parts of the human body.

We also believe it is important for any area resident who suspect battery casings have been used to cover their lots or yards to contact the Collinsville Region III office of the IEPA and request that the suspect property be tested. The telephone number there is 345-0700. Thus far, the IEPA has tested only limited areas, and it is likely other untested sites also contain high lead-contamination levels.

Let's not take the lead threat lightly. Children should be kept from playing in the dirt and, particularly, putting it in their mouths. Those residing near suspect areas should have blood tests so immediate medical attention can begin, when necessary. The attention could save years and years of impaired health. The time to act is now.

The Press-Record will do its best to keep residents informed on the lead situation, but citizen involvement now may be important in seeing that the entire scope of the problem is uncovered and the matter resolved.

Breathing deeply, before now

"It means non-smokers don't have to wait until noon or 5:30 to breathe clean air." That's the way Supervisor Wendy Nelder described a law she drafted that won San Francisco voters' approval last week, 80,740 to 79,481.

Petitions with 40,000 signatures had forced the proposition onto the ballot after initial enactment in June. Tobacco interests spent $1,200,000—more than $15 per repeal vote—in trying to block implementation of the new city ordinance.

It does not regulate smoking in state or federal offices, office space rented by independent contractors, enclosed work areas used solely by smokers, and private homes that serve as offices.

In other places of employment, non-smoking workers may seek remedies if the company fails to adequately accommodate smokers and non-smokers by separating them or by other means. Where such efforts and sweet reasoning fail, non-smokers can obtain a smoking ban, with employers facing fines of up to $500 a day if they resist.

The law will apply to municipal buildings, private businesses, medical waiting rooms, libraries, museums, hospitals and even the football locker room at Candlestick Park.

Non-smokers regard the issue as appropriate enforcement activity by locally-chosen officials.

Smokers call it governmental intrusion into private lives, even if the intruding government is local.

Although we always say, "Your smoking doesn't bother me," we agree with the former viewpoint more than the latter. The increasing numbers of studies showing that smoke from a nearby person's cigarette can harm more people than just the one doing the smoking.

A case can be made against a lot of regulations even though consumption can become addictive and undeniably is detrimental to health. A drink, a big meal, coffee, sweets—all of these habit-forming "stressors" can create health problems, particularly when the frequency and volume are excessive. But in most instances they do not directly affect one's neighbor.

Smoking is a particularly bad habit—not because the smoker himself or herself is bad, but because of what tobacco smoke can cause: lung cancer, emphysema and various other fatal or disabling disorders.

Authorities say cessation of cigarette smoking is one of the most significant health steps that can be taken. At least in San Francisco, those who quit smoking now can also avoid other people's smoking—friends, fellow workers, associates and strangers who have not yet kicked the lung-damaging habit.

Computer speeded '83 tallies

How good is the computer system that was utilized in last week's school board and college trustee election in Madison County? Unlike most of the computerization in recent years' balloting, this method did appear to work relatively well.

Whether it will be deemed worthy of a $110,000 expenditure by the financially hard-pressed county government is another matter. No doubt the cost estimate will not be considered by itself, but weighed against the considerable cost of maintaining alternate vote tabulating equipment and procedures. It might cost $2,000 apiece to recondition 221 existing vote-counting machines.

We have stayed up until the wee hours of an election night on some past occasions. In contrast, by 10:30 p.m. the receiving and reporting of returns had been completed at the Granite City Township building, one of four regional centers designated by County Clerk Evelyn Bowles.

The 12 hours of voting had ended at 7 p.m. and within a half hour the ballot boxes had begun to arrive. Figures were fed into a computer linked by special telephone lines to the county government's big computer, which was able to assimilate what it was told from the four geographic areas and crank out cumulative votes on all individuals and proposals.

The county already owns an Elpac computer which served as the central processor for the four units that were leased for the day. No transfers by voice or punch cards were required. Eliminated were the 1970s-era's lengthy breakdowns at overhyped precinct ballot machines—failures that delayed voters and vote tallies.

"I was just delighted," Miss Bowles said, pointing out that neither candidates nor voters had to lose any sleep, that her staff went home earlier than it ever had after an election, and that all canvasses were completed the following day.

From Quad-City's standpoint, the four-way slicing of Madison County did not work out precisely along community lines.

Statistics from Namooki Township Precincts 1, 7, 9 and 10 were fed through the Collinsville computer and were not obtained here until Wednesday. But the meshing of all returns at one machine enabled all governmental districts to learn their grand totals less than three and a half hours after the polling places had closed.

Injury in a business can cost owner

The question often arises as to whether a store owner is responsible for injuries sustained by an individual who slips and falls on the business owner's premises.

One type of case deals with a slip and fall by the customer inside the defendant's place of business. Obviously, the mere fact that the customer fell on the store owner's property does not automatically make the owner responsible for injuries sustained by the individual. As will be seen by the following examples, whether there is liability in this situation depends upon the facts of each particular case, as well as the customer's ability to show negligence on the part of the store owner.

In cases dealing with a slip and fall inside the owner's place of business, such as where a customer's grocery store slips and falls on a vegetable leaf, the injured party must either show that the substance was on the floor because of the actions of the store employees or that the store owner or his employees knew or should have known that the substance causing the fall was on the floor and thus should have removed it. Thus it appears that in one situation the store owner will be found liable for placing the substance on the floor and in the other case will be found negligent for not removing the hazard which caused the fall.

In the Illinois case, a restaurant patron slipped and fell on a piece of onion lying on the floor of its restaurant and sustained substantial injuries. The restaurant owner attempted to show that several patrons had eaten sandwiches in this area and that therefore anyone could have dropped the onion. The injured party testified, however, that the busboy had wiped crumbs from the table prior to the fall. In this case, the court found that the plaintiff had shown more

and you

By Rick Reed
Attorney at Law

probably than not that the onion was on the floor as a result of the busboy's actions and that, therefore, the owner was responsible for the injuries. It should be noted here that the evidence also showed that 15 to 30 minutes had elapsed since the last patron was near the table where the customer fell. The court found that this tended to prove that even if the busboy did not wipe the onion on the floor, the store owner should have known of this foreign substance on the floor and removed it, due to the length of time it was apparently there.

It should be remembered that Illinois is a comparative negligence state, and, therefore, both the customer and owner can be found to be partially at fault in a slip and fall case. For instance, the owner may be negligent in the preceding example for allowing the onion to be on the floor, and the customer may be negligent for failing to watch where he was going. In a case where each is found to be 50 percent at fault, it should be noted that the customer can only recover one-half of his damages under Illinois law.

JEAN LUCAS

Following the recent invasion of Grenada and the revelation of Cuban and Soviet arms on the island, Quad-Cityans shopping at Crossroads Plaza Sunday were asked if they believed Cuban President Fidel Castro's statement saying the arms were not meant for Grenada and Central America. Their reactions follow:

Stanley Barry, Madison

"Yes, I do believe that the arms were to be used in that area by the Cubans, and in particular Central America. I wasn't sure if the invasion was a good idea at first, but after I learned of the weapons found there I believe it was."

Jean Lucas, St. Louis

"I don't believe him (Castro). I think that the weapons found there were meant for Central America."

Walter Bortz, Granite City

"No, I don't believe Castro's statement about the arms. Undoubtedly Grenada was a stopping point for arms to Central America—for distribution in Nicaragua, Honduras and El Salvador."

C. B. Funk, Bonne Terre, Mo.

"The weapons were sent in to accomplish something. I believe Castro or the Russians were planning something out of Grenada."

Military control is essential to missions

To the Editor,

To regain U.S. military superiority, something else is needed in addition to more money and equipment. No matter how large our military budget grows and no matter how advanced our technology becomes, we shall lose the next war just as surely as we lost Vietnam, unless we correct one of the greatest deficiencies in our defense system.

What is this deficiency? Isn't it that amateurs have assumed control of our military doctrines, strategy and tactics since World War II? Isn't it that detailed military control is now in the hands of politicians, bureaucrats and defense intellectuals who have hardly ever heard a firecracker explode?

Civilian control over military operations has promoted consistent failure. The aborted Iranian mission to free the hostages was an excellent example. The absence of command authority by the ground commander at the scene to decide whether to abort the mission was critical to success. One does not have to have intimate knowledge of this operation to realize that if the president himself gave the order to abort the mission, the military commander on the spot was in a subordinate tactical role to the civilian planners in Washington, who were monitoring every move with direct communications.

This is not a one-time happenstance. Remember the Cuban Bay of Pigs and the Pueblo captured by the North Korean gunboats? These operations were also controlled from the White House. The Bay of Pigs was aborted in the middle of the operations and became a complete disaster. The Pueblo, because of indecisiveness at the Washington level to direct the American commander to fight, resulted in the capture of the crew by the North Koreans.

The seriousness of this matter is clearly reflected in their dangerous and ineffective doctrines such as flexible response, which calls for objectives short of victory, committing us to mutual deterrence, losing our strategic superiority, which weakens ability to back up foreign policy and, most dreadful of all, usurping the rightful duties of professional military men to plan and execute military campaigns, replacing them with amateurs susceptible to every crackpot idea and political wind.

Believes GC & schools need new priorities

To the Editor,

I believe the next time we have a city election that it's time to really clean house. To me, our city leaders are very unwise shoppers.

I received my sewer bill the other day, about the time of the recent township election. From the shopping center, I had to detour three times to travel about one mile because of flooded streets. This isn't unusual. It's expected—it happens every time it rains hard for over 10 minutes, so where are the improvements that caused the need of more money that resulted in such an outlandish increase in my bill?

They don't see fit to hire enough policemen or firemen. They don't see fit to pay the ones we have adequately.

According to FBI figures of 1980, the national rate of law officers was 2.1 percent per 1,000 residents. This was a figure that the experts endorsed. Granite City has 1.3 percent.

West Granites, where is your police protection? Call your alderman and ask about a regular patrol in that section of our city.

Also from FBI figures, from 1971 to 1980, 1,147 officers were slain. Don't you think they need a pay raise? Life is worth something—and my life and property are worth a great deal to me.

I'd like to think I can count on fast and alert police protection from someone who is not dead tired from handling two jobs to support his family.

And another unwise shopper, the school board, spends about one-half of our tax money. Yet they close schools and build more soccer fields.

Some of our present schools even have paint falling off the walls. They are deteriorating, as are the ones that now stand empty! More jobs lost, less income, less spending. In my opinion, our city government is also showing signs of deterioration.

It's like the shopper who travels 25 miles to save three cents on a loaf of bread.

'True' school is the one the parents pick

To the Editor,

What is the "American" school? What is the school that fits the America of history, the America of freedom, the America of democracy, the America of equality?

Most Americans may not be able to answer that question in a positive way. They can't say this or that school is the really American school. The first school in America was set up by the missionaries in Florida and New Mexico. And the early American schools were all schools that emphasized religion.

The first Protestant schools, in fact, were thought of primarily as preparations for the ministry. This was particularly true of Harvard and Yale.

Those who know the Constitution and Supreme Court history, know what an "American" school really is—the school of the parents' choice that meets reasonable standards.

"The true American school" is not the private school or the parochial school or the public school. The true American school is whatever truly accredited school the parents of a child choose for that child.

On dead, two hurt in shooting

Danny P. Farley, 39, of 2712 Denver St., was killed and two others were wounded at 10:45 last night by gunfire at Woodies Hideaway Tavern on Chouteau Island.

Farley was pronounced dead at 2:30 a.m. today by Madison City

Deputy Coroner Dick Mizell, who said Farley suffered one bullet wound to the head.

Mizell said the two other men injured in the shooting were Danny Shemwell, 24, of Rural Route Two, Mitchell, and Henry Murphy, 31, of Wood River. Both were treated at St.

Elizabeth Medical Center and Shemwell was released, but Murphy checked himself out against medical advice.

An official from the Madison County Sheriff's Department said early Monday that the investigation had suggested that Farley was in possession of a weapon at the time of the shooting.

The deputy said that a suspect believed to have fired the fatal blow is in custody, but that he has not yet been charged, pending additional investigation.

Madison Sr. High School students to view 'Energy Adventure' show

Energy Adventure, a live, fast-paced assembly program that answers questions about where energy comes from, how it is used, and why it has become costly, will be presented to Madison Senior High School students on Thursday, Nov. 17, in Madison. Energy Adventure is produced by Oak Ridge Associated Universities (ORAU) and is funded by the Amoco Foundation Incorporated.

Energy Adventure is a teaching resource that helps students see how energy relates to a variety of subjects such as history, geography, social studies, economics and the sciences. Students learn about energy production, supply and demand economics, and alternative energy sources.

The program is presented by a specifically trained teacher-demonstrator who has received extensive training from ORAU. Demonstrators are updated with the latest developments in energy technology, research and development. Colorful graphics, electronic teaching aids, upbeat humor and audience participation are incorporated to stimulate student attention and interest.

Deborah Duncan, teacher-demonstrator for the program at Madison Senior High School said, "Students find that energy crises have existed throughout history and that energy supply and demand often involve controversial political, ecological and economic issues. During the program they probe the complex relationships between consumers, business and government, and the way these affect the entire economy. The students also learn that science and technology have essential roles to play in our energy future. Energy Adventure shows that our handling, or our neglect, of energy issues will have a profound effect on many aspects of our lives."

The Energy Adventure program currently has seven units that travel throughout the United States during the school year, giving student presentations to local high schools and junior high school audiences.

Miss Mills, a soprano, will appear as a soloist with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra in "A Viennese Evening" at 8:30 Friday night at Powell Symphony Hall.

Erich Leinsdorf will be guest conductor of the orchestra. Featured will be the Emperor Waltz, Artists' Quadrille and Die Fledermaus overture by Johann Strauss and excerpts from Richard Strauss' Der Rosenkavalier.

Delia Wallace, mezzo-soprano, and Ellen Shade, soprano, will appear along with Miss Mills in the Symphony concert.

Coming here to speak to Thursday's 10 a.m. gathering at the City Hall will be Richard Gaddes, director of the Opera Theatre of St. Louis, and Joel Revzen, director of the Community Association of Schools for the Arts (CASA). The Symphony also will be represented.

Citing this community's "affection and pride in her artistry," the mayor's proclamation designates Nov. 17 as Erie Mills Day.

2nd indictment in custody case

Mrs. Nora Thornberry of Granite City was indicted by a Madison County grand jury Thursday for alleged accountability in unlawful restraint, authorities said.

Her son, Gregory Homyer, was indicted for unlawful restraint Oct. 27. He was a deputy sheriff in this county until moving about two or three years ago to Las Vegas for employment with the Hilton Hotel chain.

Homyer was found to be the father of a four-year-old girl in a September paternity suit ruling and is said to have taken custody of the girl in mid-October.

Larry Trent of the Illinois Division of Criminal Investigation said the man cannot be charged with kidnapping because he is the father and cannot be charged with child abduction because custody had not been determined.

A hearing is to be held tomorrow in Edwardsville on a motion by Barbara Crowder, assistant state's attorney, to find Homyer in civil contempt of court for disobeying an order by Associate Judge Charles Roman Jr. to return the girl to her home.

Homyer's attorney, Jack Strellis, is appealing Circuit Judge P.J. O'Neill's decision to refuse to hear a motion to dismiss the Homyer indictment until the former deputy is returned to Madison County.

He surrendered Nov. 8 and was released on a personal recognizance bond by Clark County District Judge James Brennan. Homyer declined to waive extradition, and the judge authorized temporary custody of the girl, banning her removal from the state.

The mother of the child alleges Homyer took the girl against the mother's wishes.

Mrs. Thornberry is alleged to have accompanied her son and granddaughter to an airport and to have failed to prevent their departure.

Concessions being sought at Conalco

Concessions being sought at the Consolidated Aluminum Corp. plant in Madison are estimated by the United Steelworkers at 40 percent.

Buddy W. Davis, union district director, told the Press-Record today the 40 percent reduction estimate takes into account pay, benefits and work rules.

Initial word of the need for substantial cost reductions was received by union officials in a meeting Friday. Negotiations were held during the weekend and will resume tonight. Employees are to meet Wednesday for a report and possibly for a vote.

Davis said the Steelworkers have been asked to respond to the company's request by Friday, timing which he described as unusually short notice.

"We hope to achieve a positive resolution," Theodore M. Tschopp, president of Consolidated, commented. If the concessions are not granted, however, aluminum manufacturing would be halted here.

It is estimated that the big Madison plant, once operated by Dow Chemical Co., employs 150 to 200 in aluminum and about the same number in magnesium. The magnesium workers' contract extends to April 1984.

The plant is owned by Alusuisse of America, part of a Swiss corporation, Alusuisse Group.

Business Women to fete past officers

The Granite City Business and Professional Women's Club will host its annual Past Presidents' Night dinner at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 16, at Engelbert Hall, 1613 Tenth St., Madison.

BPW President Rose Ezell and members of the executive board are in charge of the annual event, which is designed to honor all past presidents of the local business women's organization.

A Thanksgiving-style dinner with all the trimmings will be served. Mrs. Ezell advised the meal will be prepared by the club officers. Canned goods for the needy will be collected at the meeting.

Reservations, costing $7 per person, are being accepted by calling 877-5212 or 271-8319. All working women in the Quad-City area are cordially invited to attend, Mrs. Ezell said.

tamination in Venice, Eagle Park Acres and other neighboring areas apparently related to the use of broken battery casings from the lead pile to cover lots and alleyways.

THE STATE will take extensive soil sampling down to three feet or deeper from Venice yards, lots and alleys to determine the depth of the lead contamination.

Earlier this month, the IEPA announced results of a laboratory analysis of samples taken in Venice which revealed lead levels ranging from 1,130 parts of lead for each part of soil at Fourth Street and Lincoln Avenue to 44,000 parts per million in the 200 block of Granville Street.

Other outside communities generally have between 50 to 100 parts lead per million.

RICHARD UNWIN, an NL information officer, said he is unaware of any records the firm might have of the possible past practice of giving away battery casings from the lead pile. He said no staff member currently at NL was with the company during the period the casings might have been given away.

If such records do exist, he said, they would probably be in the hands of the current owners of Taracorp. Tony Lindsay, director of Taracorp, said earlier he was looking into the matter, but did not expect to find such records.

Unwin said did not believe the lead contamination came from the waste pile battery casings, since NL had used a process to recycle all the lead from the casings for use in the firm's lead smelter.

The IEPA, however, found battery case chips present in all the lead-contaminated soil samples taken in Venice.

TV, COIN BOX BURGLARIES

A burglar stole a portable 19-inch color television set Thursday evening from the apartment of Tammy Hendrickson, 3907 Kirkpatrick Homes. In an unrelated crime, a burglar removed and took two coin boxes from an auto washing stall and ransacked a work bench area Thursday at G & G Car Wash, 2222 Madison Ave.

Madison County may lose interest money

By SUSAN SIGNAIGO-WEICH of the Press-Record

Madison County's general fund may lose as much as $610,000 if a Springfield circuit court case is upheld. According to Assistant State's Attorney Marshall "Zeke" Smith, the county may lose all interest money earned from real estate collections.

In the past, the county has kept the interest it earned on invested property tax revenues, while waiting to distribute the money to the various taxing districts. But this interest money may now have to be divided and returned to all the taxing districts.

IF THE INTEREST revenue is lost, the county will be forced to trim six percent from an already thin budget. The general fund, currently at $10.7 million, is $1.5 million lower than last year's budget. The board is scheduled to vote on the 1984 budget this Wednesday.

The court case that has caused the change of policy is the village of Pawnee versus Sangamon County. A total 98 counties in Illinois would be affected, of which Madison County is one, Smith says.

On Oct. 27, the presiding judge ruled that the interest money collected from property taxes should be returned to the taxing bodies. These county monies are to be held in escrow, pending an appeal of the case. The county has until Nov. 23 to establish such a fund.

SMITH SAID the county could stand to lose between $40,000 and $80,000 from this past fiscal year, which ends Nov. 30, and could lose as much as $490,000 from the next fiscal year.

"We've already got the money allocated for next year and now looks like we may lose it," said Smith. "And things don't look too good for the county on this case. I don't think we have much of a chance of winning," he warned.

Smith said he expects the court case to go before the Illinois Supreme Court before a final decision is made. He anticipates the final decision to be reached within the next year and one-half.

MEMBERS OF THE Madison County Finance Committee discussed the possible loss of funds at meetings last Wednesday and Thursday.

The committee voted unanimously Thursday to recommend that no general fund budget categories be increased for the coming fiscal year. This reportedly would save $307,493 of the $610,000.

The committee also agreed to shift $275,000 from the general fund to the election fund. This, however, will result in a tax increase that may cause the election tax to go from 3.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation to 5.5 cents.

THE GROUP suggested that the final $28,000 be taken from the reserves.

The crisis comes during informational picketing by the county sheriff's employees and some other county workers. The employees are claiming that the county is refusing to pay a $30,000 increase in employee health insurance. There also are about 400 clerical workers who are currently negotiating a contract with the county.

Warrior harriers finish 23 at Detweiller Park

By MICHAEL BARTELS
of the Press-Record

PEORIA—Last September, when the high school cross country season started for Granite City behind, Granite City High School, the temperature was over 90 degrees at 10 a.m.—a far cry from conditions at Peoria's Detweiller Park on Saturday for the state high school cross country meet.

At the park, which runs adjacent to the Industrial Illinois River, the temperature at race time was only 31 degrees. Nonetheless, 73 Illinois cross country teams and more than 100 select individual entries prepared to take on the three-mile course; all of them with the same thought in mind—win the state championship.

More than 200 girls started the race, and Lora Wiser, sophomore from Granite City High School, fought her way through the dense pack to finish 16th in the state; no small accomplishment considering her team had drawn the No. 1 chute. It sounded as if that should have been good, but it was located so far to the left of the opening stretch that anyone starting from there had to fight their way through three-fourths of the 200-runner pack to get into decent position for the remainder of the 2.1 mile course.

In the team competition, the Warriors finished 23rd in the field of 25, scoring 499 team points. Wheeling high school, a pre-meet favorite, took the girls' cross country crown with only 134 points.

The scene at the state meet was something few people who have never been there could possibly imagine. Take 73 schools and 103 individual entries from Class A Boys, Girls, and Class AA boys divisions and add their families, fans and coaches. Throw in a few thousand hard-core, die-hard cross country fans, and you end up with over 10,000 people lining the three-mile course; an awesome sight for the kid is used to being cheered on by two coaches and a dozen or so teammates and friends.

Coach Pete Robinson predicted the kind of race it was going to have to be for Granite City to do well as a team.

"If the girls are going to do well, they're going to have to move to the right just after the start," Robinson said as the girls were doing their last-minute warmups in the freezing cold. "At about the 600-yard mark, they need to have some good position."

That 600-yard mark became particularly important when it boosts a 180-degree turn back towards the starting line. It loses a lot of runners. But it didn't seem to both Wiser much. Around the first post, she was in the top 10 position, crucial to finishing well.

"Lora ran the race very smart," Robinson said. "She got to the outside and moved up to good position. Around the first loop she was in seventh place."

Though Wiser ran a smart race, the rest of the Warriors, whether awe-struck by the crowds or just intimidated by the old, did not fare so well. Of the 25 schools in the meet, their team standing was 23rd.

"We were really happy about making it to state," Wiser said. "But we didn't do that well as a team." The Warriors finished behind both Collinsville and O'Fallon schools they had been beating all season.

The girls' race was won by York (Elmhurst) freshman Mary Driscoll, surprising most at the race. Her time of 11:25 was eight seconds better than the time Springfield Sectional winner Melissa Straza was able to muster. For most of the race, Straza held a slim lead but gave it up to Driscoll with a half-mile to go. Another area runner, Collinsville's Pam Quarengi, finished 27th overall.

Michelle Shoemaker finished second for the Warriors with a time of 12:59 and 123rd overall, and freshman Sheila Noel came in 156th with a time of 13:18. Kim Ames came in 132nd with a time of 13:23 while Dawn Young and Angie Grabowski finished 150th and 151st, respectively, with times of 13:49 and 13:52.

Fay Patton finished in 156th place with a time of 14:00.

But now, coach Robinson feels, his team is over the first huddle, and his program will begin to develop.

"We will have a big advantage next year," Robinson said. "Everyone has been there; next year they'll be going up there knowing what it's all about."

No one on this year's girls' team is graduating, and two of the top seven runners are freshmen, with four others being sophomores, including Wiser. The only senior next season will be Shoemaker.

According to Robinson, this year's team was lacking in depth but attributes interest in running in southern Illinois to the infancy of the women's sport.

"One of the things I need to do is get the city meet back. I want kids to know there's a sport called cross country," Robinson said. "If those kids could every go up and see that state meet, I don't see how they could help but get enthused about it."

Robinson continued: "We lacked a little depth this year. We were only about five deep. The key is putting in a lot of miles. Cross Country in the girls level hasn't been around long. It hasn't gotten to the same level at the state as the boys. They're not going to get to that point for another four or five years."

PEORIA — Sunday afternoon Jimmy Robertson took off from his home near Pontoon Beach for a run with former Illinois State University All-American Mike Baker.

That in itself isn't a particularly noteworthy event, since Robertson is one of the top medium distance runners in southern Illinois. But what is worthy of a second look is that he is hitting the pavement the day after a 24th-place finish in the Illinois state high school cross country championship.

That 24th-place finish was in the midst of the toughest competition in the state of Illinois and, consequently, among some of the premier runners in the nation. But Robertson wasn't particularly happy about his finish in this race, the last in an injury and illness-ridden high school career which still boasted more than nominal success.

"I ran a lousy race," Robertson said. "I ran it 20 seconds faster in Jacksonville," Robertson continued, noting the similarity between the Jacksonville Invitational course and that of Detweiller Park in Peoria.

"That time would have placed me 6th in the state. It makes me sick," he said.

But then, a dedicated athlete's worst and probably toughest critic is himself. Coach Pete Robinson thought his runner ran "one heck of a race," despite what Robertson thought was a sub-par finish.

His finish does not reflect that "he had a bad race," Robinson said. "He had to put out one heck of an effort to finish in the top 25. He was pretty disappointed. He did about as good as he could. That bad start got him."

That bad start was almost inevitable. Robertson had the same trouble with the draw of starting chutes that the girls' team had earlier in the morning. The girls' were in chute no. 1 and Robertson drew chute 5b, next to Chatham-Glenwood's Dave Egan, winner of the Springfield Sectional. Robertson finished second in that race.

The start seemed to be the problem of many of the runners.

"You just don't expect the problem," Robinson said. "If you get stuck on the inside you're in trouble. Your other choice is to run like crazy for the first 600 yards. Out of the start Jimmy was 65 or 70. It took him a while to get up to 20th."

Robertson acknowledged he had a problem at the start.

"I got caught in the inside," he said. "I got pinned on the first turn. I never got to the outside; that was the big problem."

"It was so crowded on the inside. You had to stop and walk around the tree. The corners were real muddy so you had to slow down or you would fall."

"He ran into a tree and had to make a complete stop," Robinson agreed. "He had to back off from it and start again. He probably lost 10 seconds total. That would have put him in the top ten."

This was the first year Robertson has made it to the state cross country meet. Last season he was battling a bout with bronchitis during the sectional meet and failed to qualify. Both Robertson and Robinson agreed he had qualified last year, his finish this year would probably have been stronger.

"That hurt Jimmy," Robinson said. "If he could've slipped through the sectional last year and gotten to state the experience would have helped him."

Robertson agreed.

"If I could've gotten there last year I could have known to get to the outside," he said. "I would have taken off a little faster and headed diagonally across the field to the first post."

Enough probably can't be said about the level of competition Robertson and the more than 230 other runners faced on Saturday.

"All those kids are experienced runners," Robinson said of the northern sectional qualifiers in particular. "They're used to running tough competition. They're not going to go out there crazy and burn themselves out."

On an otherwise green day, Robinson said, the results would be totally different.

"If we took them off tomorrow the results could be totally different,"

he said. "I told Jimmy that when they took off on Saturday, he was the 24th best runner in the state."

"He's got the ability to run," Robinson continued. "He'll do very well in college. He is just starting to blossom as a runner. He went to state last year in the two mile and ran his best time ever. That shows he is a quality runner."

"He showed a lot of competitive desire Saturday," Robinson said. "I'm very proud of him."

If Robertson had it all to do over again, what would he change? "I'd get to the outside and get to the 600-yard mark as fast as I could; and I'd warm up in two pairs of sweats."

So after a day of disappointment in himself, Robertson is back on the road putting in the miles he knows are necessary to make it to, and hopefully win, the state this year in the one and two-mile events in spring track.

So if you see a dark-haired young man in his blue sweats and superstitious black wind-breaker, give him the road; he's working for a state title.

Powderly makes things rough on SIUE

By AL BARNES
for the Press-Record

EDWARDSVILLE—Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville's soccer team won a pair of games over the past weekend, walloping the Indians of Principia College 8-0 Saturday of Southeast Missouri State U. of Cape Girardeau was something else again.

SEMO figured to be an easy romp for the Cougars, who were figured to rack up a breeze game and add to their season record in order to better impress the Midwest division I NCAA selection committee for a possible at-large bid late Sunday night or early today.

The Indians, only three years into soccer and with a dismal 4-7-2 campaign, were given very little chance against the Cougars of veteran coach, Bob Guelker.

The player who almost turned the game into a nightmare for SIUE was former Granite City South High goalkeeper, Greg Powderly.

The slender and cat-cul Powderly was nothing less than sensational as he set a new SIUE school record when he stopped an amazing 21 shots-on-goal fired at him by Cougar marksmen, 12 in the first

Granite City Center wins debut

It took an overtime period, but Granite City Center basketball Coach Larry Graham and his Stars won their debut game Thursday night over Linthart Junior College of Linn, Mo.

An 88-80 overtime win, the Stars scored 20 points in the last minutes to win their first contest.

"This is exactly what junior college basketball is all about," Graham said after the game. "When you see kids from Granite City, Collinsville, Cahokia and Madison group together to play as well as we did it makes you feel good inside."

For the Stars' Thursday night, three Granite Cityans were part of the victory. Pat Linhart, Granite City South's strong man last year, started for the Stars at a forward spot. Other GC athletes to see action were Jim Petty and Rich Rudy.

Other starters for the Stars Thursday night, in addition to Linhart, were Cleveland Young at the other forward slot, Donald Goodwin at center, Collinsville's Marc Parker at guard and Madison's Carvell Claggett at the other guard position.

Afterwards Graham said he was encouraged by the way his team played, pointing out that each of his starters scored in double figures.

The Stars' schedule which consists of 20 games and two tournaments, pits them against Scott Air Force Base on Tuesday, Nov. 15. That game is the Stars home opener.

Powderly

half and nine in the second half.

Largely because of Powderly's awesome keeping talents in the first half, the two teams fought to a 0-0 deadlock. In the early going, Powderly withstood the Cougars' almost overwhelming shots-on-goal attack. SIUE out shot Cape, 18 to 10 in that first 15 minutes.

At one second over 10 minutes into the second half, the Cougars finally scored when Bill Stalling took a Chris Hundelt pass and beat Powderly for the go-ahead goal and what the crowd thought would be the beginning of the end for the Indians.

Seamless promptly bounced to tie it on Gerg Billmeyer's goal on a pass from Tim Hantak just one minute-and-a-half later.

With the victory, the Cougars finished their regular season with a 10-6-2 record, while the Indians dropped to 4-8-0's. However, SEMO's loss nevertheless had to be the school's soccer team's finest hour, thanks to the performance of Powderly in goal. At Granite City South, he has been in goal his junior and senior years as the Warrior's veteran coach, Gene J. Baker racked up two Illinois high school championships.

The funny thing about Powderly's choice of SEMO as his college was he might have gone to SIUE. However, family moved to Cape after he graduated from high school. His twin brother, Tim, is a defender, and might have been, accidentally, the main reason Greg missed saving the Cougars' winning goal at 74:17 by Dan O'Keefe on an assist from Dan Malloy.

With time rapidly running out, the Cougar offense was throwing everything at Powderly but the kitchen sink...and he was stopping them all.

Fortunately for the Cougars, Coach Guelker and wisely decided to go south in the first half "so that the sun would be in their keeper's eyes at the end."

All through the final 45 minutes, Powderly was forced to shade his eyes from the almost direct rays at that time of the day...around 4 p.m.; however, young Powderly refused to use the sun in his eyes as an alibi.

"The sun was tough, sure enough, but I clearly saw his (O'Keefe's) shot coming and could have made the stop...except one of my defenders...and it may have been my brother, Tim, just barely got a shoulder on the ball and the ball was just barely out of fingertips reach."

One thing sure: the Indians' soccer team, with Powderly in goal, was a much better bunch of kickers than their record would seem to indicate.

Predicted Powderly: "We'll be back next year."

No playoff bid for SIUE

For the first time in 14 years the Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville men's soccer team has failed to get an NCAA playoff berth.

The Cougars, 10-6-2, lost the third regional seed bid to Southern Methodist University. SMU will face St. Louis University this Wednesday in first round action. The winner of that game will face Eastern University later in the week.

Academic quality stressed in proposed long-range plan

A plan for prioritization of academic programs at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville has been approved by the University Planning and Budget Council (UPBC) of the Faculty Senate for submission to President Earl Lazerson.

The plan, prepared by the Long Range Planning Committee on the basis of recommendations submitted by the Curriculum Council and Graduate Council, will be considered by the president for possible implementation in fiscal year 1985 through the Office of Academic Affairs.

"Lazerson said he will not make recommendations concerning the plan until it has been reviewed by constituency groups and until he has received comments from program directors who would be affected by the proposed changes.

In transmitting the plan to the president, the chairman of the UPBC, Warren Joseph, expressed pleasure that "this significant forward step has been made." He noted that "it could only have been possible with a great amount of time and dedication on the part of a large number of people."

Fres. Lazerson said the plan is the first step in a continuing planning process that will periodically review programs with the two objectives of improving the quality of the university and its ability to respond to societal needs.

He added that the evaluation process will be coordinated with the university's self-study, which has been launched in preparation for a 10-year review of the institution's accreditation status by the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools, scheduled for April, 1986.

Recommendations dealing only with fiscal and policy issues regarding existing academic programs were contained in the first phase of the long-range plan approved by the UPBC.

According to John Meisel, chairman of the Long Range Planning Committee, a second set of recommendations dealing with non-instructional units will be submitted later.

Meisel said that to make fiscal recommendations, the committee used five categories into which programs were inserted, with each category suggesting an incremental budget recommendation: maintenance (of the current level of university resources), increase, major increase, reduction and major reduction.

Each recommendation is based on the fiscal year 1984 budget.

Criteria used by the committee in making the evaluations included each program's centrality, or relevance to the general education core; regional need; quality; enrollment; and cost. The criteria were similar for both undergraduate and graduate programs.

In addition to recommendations regarding use of limited resources, the committee proposed several goals for the university and ways of achieving the goals.

"For example, we recommended that the university make every effort to aid those faculty and staff affected by implementation of the long-range plan," Meisel said, "and we suggested that the administration provide as many inducements as economically and legally feasible to promote early retirements.

"Moreover, promotion of and targeting of resources to efforts at retraining should be encouraged."

Meisel indicated that Phase II of the long-range plan project will require development of a process in which academic units state their views of what their academic programs and research should be doing five to 10 years from now, how they see their plans meshing with the overall plans of the university, and the basis on which their plans have been formed.

Meisel and Joseph said there apparently is general agreement that "a primary focus of planning must be consideration of the quality of the university and what need to be done to achieve and maintain quality."

Peretto, 26, of 1104 Kirkpatrick Homes.

Q: Our daughter, who will graduate from high school this spring, has her heart set on college, and is quite capable of doing the work. However, the tuition is beyond our means. Can we obtain a loan for payment of college tuition?

A: The first step you and your daughter should take is to go to the financial aid office of the college. They will be able to tell you about available scholarship and grant funds and those for which your daughter may be eligible. They'll also help get the paperwork started and the sooner the better. There are also a number of loan plans available, including guaranteed student loans, which are government subsidized, with eligibility and amounts depending upon family income. Interest rates are low, and repayment begins after the student leaves school. Auxiliary or "parent" loans are also available for those unable to borrow enough on a student loan to pay expenses. Your banker or the college's financial aid officers can provide details on these programs.

Park District hosts Christmas Ideas Festival Saturday

On Saturday, Nov. 19, the Granite City Park District will sponsor its sixth annual Christmas Ideas Festival at the Harold Brown Recreation Center, Franklin and Amos avenues. The festival is free to the public and the hours are from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

The show is designed to display and sell crafts, gifts, decorations and other ideas with the emphasis on Christmas. All items must be hand-crafted originals. Many new exhibits have been added this year.

Other exhibits at the festival include: homemade jams and jellies, herb crafts, personalized wood items, wooden jewelry, water colors of famous celebrities, Pennsylvania Dutch "hex" motifs, picture quilting, quilt racks, Christmas tree skirts and wooden reindeer.

Also, Christmas ornaments, dry brushed wildlife items, pressed flower pictures, stenciling, pine cone items, rock and shell creations, macramé, decorator pillows, doughnut, needlework, stained glass planter lamps, wooden items for the home, beadwork and flower arrangements.

Jewelry, dolls, doll houses and furniture, painted baskets, cypress clocks, wall hangings, woodburning art, tote painting, oil paintings, plastercraft, wooden toys, quilts and afghans, tin crafts, acrylic cutouts, loveknits, wheatweaving, painted bottles, leaded stained glass, ceramic and porcelain items, house blessing plaques and Christmas art balloons.

One featured exhibit is that of Joe and Sandie Pascoe, egg craftsmen. Mrs. Pascoe has no formal art training, but has drawn and painted all her life. She started scratch-carving eggs in 1973, after reading a magazine article on the subject.

Learning by trial and error, experimenting with methods and techniques, and researching the original methods and designs, she started with simple designs and gradually developed her own realistic style, using nature's motifs. All the designs are completely original works of art, all are carved freehand and all ideas are uniquely her own.

Occasionally exploring different fields, such as medieval folklore, fantasy, rustic landscapes and the world of children, her primary interests have been in capturing the character of the animals she carves.

Jack Pascoe does all the emptying and dyeing of the eggs, as well as the intricate cutting necessary to create functional items of egg art. He assists in some phases of the egg carving and assembles the eggs in the numerous ways in which they are used. Pascoe is also the business manager.

The art of scratch-carved eggs dates back to the Fourth century. It is called "Eier grizzle" in Germany and "maragualca" in Lithuania. The art was brought to this country by the Pennsylvania Dutch.

After the eggs are emptied, they are dyed by boiling them with the skins of yellow onions, then the designs are carved with a sharp knife and the eggs are coated with three or four layers of an acrylic finish for strength and shine.

The Pascos use quail, guinea, banty, chicken, duck, goose, rhea, emu and ostrich eggs. It is illegal to use wild bird eggs in any kind, so all eggs used are farm raised and are not endangering any species.

The finished egg can fall over on a table or a carpeted floor with little chance of breaking, but a sharp edge or hard floor will break it.

Dorsey man hurt in truck-train mishap

A pickup truck operated by Floyd E. Baker, 52, of Dorsey, Ill., was demolished, but the driver's primary injury appeared to be a fractured leg as a result of a truck-train accident at a railroad crossing on Lake Drive, about a quarter mile north of Route 162, at 4:40 p.m. Friday, according to a spokesman for the Madison County Sheriff's Department.

Baker's pickup, headed south on Lake Drive, was struck in the driver's door by a railroad car moving in front of a self-propelled crane, which was traveling west on the tracks.

The motorized crane had the flat car in front and two cars, holding railroad ties, at the rear.

The impact pushed Baker's vehicle along the tracks and the man had to be extricated from the wreckage by a rescue crew from the Long Lake Fire Department. He was taken by Campbell's Ambulance Service to St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

James K. Brown, 27, of Gillespie, Ill., was operating the CNW railroad equipment.

Police investigate Pontoon hit & run

Pontoon Beach police are investigating a reported hit and run accident on Illinois Route 111 last Tuesday, Nov. 8. Thomas E. Ezell, 46, of East St. Louis was southbound on Highway 111 at 12:15 a.m. when a brown 1972 Dodge Charger pulled out of the Spartan Gas Station, swung wide, into Ezell's lane, hitting his car.

The brown Charger continued northbound on Route 111, disappearing from sight.

Investigation by Ezell and Pontoon Beach police, which led them to another Pontoon Beach gas station, revealed that a vehicle matching that description stopped there for gasoline shortly after.

Police and Ezell were without further leads until later that week, when the same reporting officer was on duty and sighted a vehicle matching that description.

Investigation proved worthy. That vehicle, which was damaged in the approximate area as reported by Ezell, allegedly was involved in the hit and run.

The owner of the vehicle, Leonard R. Cole, 36, of 1411 Gouterman, South Roxana, was charged with leaving the scene of an accident and criminal damage to property.

BATTERY WARRANT SERVED

Serving a battery warrant related to an incident at 10 a.m. Nov. 8 in the 2000 block of 13th Street, police arrested Joe D. Cathey, 43, of 2818 Lincoln Ave. at his home at 7:50 p.m. Thursday. Four hours later, in an unrelated case, Frank W. Kaylich, 54, of 2745 Grand Ave. was arrested at home for disorderly conduct.

SIUE School of Nursing receives $136,152 grant award

THE SOUTHERN ILLINOIS University at Edwardsville School of Nursing has been funded by the Division of Nursing, Health Resources and Services Administration, Department of Health and Human Services, for an advanced nurse training grant. "Graduate Program in Medical-Surgical and Community Health Nursing," Patricia Forni, dean of the School of Nursing, said the grant awards totalled $136,152 for the 1983-84 year.

She said the three-year project provides for significant expansion of the existing master's degree in two clinical areas: the medical-surgical nursing specialization, begun in the fall of 1982, and the community health nursing specialization which will begin fall quarter, 1984. The grant provides for faculty and support costs.

Dean Forni said there are three special features of the project. First, a lecture series by distinguished nursing leadership will be offered three times each year on the topics of nursing practice, role and research. These lectures will be open to the public as well as students and faculty at SIUE. She said, "The lectures will serve as an enrichment to the nursing programs at SIUE."

A second feature provides for a visiting professorship in community health nursing for one quarter during the second year of the project.

The third feature provides for a feasibility study to determine whether there is a need for a community nursing center and to begin

Fellowships in the humanities available

The Council for Basic Education, under a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities, has announced a program of independent study in the humanities for high school teachers. According to Vaughn Lindsay, dean of the Office of Graduate Studies and Research at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, each $3,000 fellowship will be awarded to outstanding teachers of English, foreign languages, history, and other studies in the humanities in grades nine to 12.

According to Dean Lindsay, the principal purpose of the program is to encourage serious independent study in the humanities by individual teachers and, by improving teachers' knowledge of their subjects, to nourish the intellectual life of schools. Approximately 100 fellowships will be awarded for summer 1984 for eight weeks of concentrated individual study, which will be self-directed reading and research.

Each fellow receives a stipend of $2,800, and the fellow's school library receives $200 for the purchase of books that will be of value to students and other teachers. Fellows must complete the eight weeks of full-time study between June 1 and Aug. 31, 1984. In addition, they must not have any other paid employment during this time. A study report is required by Sept. 30, 1984. Dean Lindsay said.

Teachers may apply if they have taught at least five years full time in U. S. schools, hold a master's degree or equivalent and carry a full teaching load, with three-fifths of their schedule in the humanities during the 1983-84 and 1984-85 academic years.

In addition, applicants must have at least five years of service remaining before retirement, have a capacity for independent study and have not previously been awarded a fellowship for independent study in the humanities. Deadline for applications is Dec. 15.

Additional information or application materials may be obtained by contacting Lill O'Neal Manning in the SIUE Office of Graduate Studies and Research by calling 1-692-3162 or by writing: Independent Study in the Humanities, Box 2915, Princeton, N. J., 08541.

Unused loans available

There are thousands of unused college scholarships and loans for which students can do quality. The students' problem is to find those for which they qualify. Student College Aid, a nationwide, computerized, scholarship locator service, with $500,000,000 of non-government awards in its data base, searched out scholarships and loans for students. Students contact the company for free information and a personalized dataform. SCA mails this information to the students.

To use the service, students fill in the dataform as completely as possible. Information as to college major, religious affiliation, club membership etc. is requested. This information is coded into the computer. The computer searches through thousands of sources and prints out those to which the student is eligible to apply. This printout is mailed to the students, who then contacts the funding sources.

Student College Aid guarantees to furnish at least five listings or to refund payment along with those listings discovered. The average number of listings the students receive is 12, valued at $12,000. The fee for this service is $45.00. There is a discount for families with more than one student.

SCA has added two new services: a Graduate School Scholarship and Loan Locator Service, $49 with a guarantee of at least three listings, and a service to help families earning between $25,000 and $60,000 qualify for college federal and state funds they otherwise would not qualify for.

For free information, interested persons may write Student College Aid, 3641 Deal St., Houston, Tex., 77025, or phone 1-713-668-7899.

Reynolds Aluminum Company expands operations in GC

Reynolds Aluminum Recycling Company, which promotes cleaner communities and less consumer waste through a nationwide aluminum recycling program, is expanding its metropolitan St. Louis operations, including longer hours in Granite City.

Effective tomorrow, Nov. 15, the Reynolds Metals Company subsidiary, will more than double its buying hours at centers in Granite City, Cool Valley and East St. Louis. Reynolds also will open a new five-day collection center at the Farmer's Market in Baden.

Reynolds expanded locations and new hours include: Crossroads Plaza Shopping Center, Nameoki and Pontoon roads, Tuesdays through Saturdays, 9:30 a.m. to noon and 12:30 to 3 p.m.

In addition to announcing the new hours, Reynolds noted that it would continue its summer schedule, buying from the public six days a week at the recycling plant at 1501 South Kingshighway in the city of St. Louis.

"Normally we would reduce hours at this time of the year," said Owen W. Moore Jr., manager of the St. Louis complex. "But the economy has been improving to the point where the housing and automotive industries are needing aluminum again and we pay more now for recyclable aluminum. That's an extra incentive to the public."

Reynolds currently pays 35 cents per pound for all-aluminum cans at all of its metropolitan St. Louis buying locations. The firm also will pay 20 cents per pound for certain other miscellaneous aluminum products and aluminum castings.

"People tend to think of aluminum recycling only in terms of beverage cans," Moore said. "But there's a tremendous amount of aluminum used in the home every day which gets pitched into the trash, when it, too, can be recycled into new products. Reynolds pays cash for these items, too."

Among the miscellaneous aluminum which Reynolds purchases are such items as pie plates, foil, frozen food and dinner trays, and dip, pudding and meal containers. The firm buys aluminum siding, gutters, storm door and window frames, lawn furniture tubing, and castings. The miscellaneous items and castings should be clean of non-aluminum materials and kept separate from the cans.

Through its nationwide consumer recycling program, now entering its 16th year of operation, Reynolds has paid the American public more than $400 million for not throwing away nearly two billion pounds of recyclable aluminum.

"Reynolds has been encouraging aluminum recycling less than 10 years in St. Louis," Moore said. "But we anticipate buying our millionth pound here sometime next spring with the opening of our new center and the expanded hours."

"That will be the equivalent of 480 million all-aluminum cans that will have been saved by area residents for recycling. And it represents a considerable sum of cash — new money — which has been put back in the area's economy."

State tax checkoff box helps fund wildlife protection

Governor James R. Thompson has signed into law the Illinois Non-Game Wildlife Protection Act, which will allow citizens to contribute money to wildlife conservation by checking the appropriate box on their Illinois State Income Tax Forms.

The act was hailed as a milestone by David Kenney, director of the Department of Conservation. He pointed out that Illinois is the 28th state to enact this type of legislation, since Colorado passed the first such law in 1978.

The law states that citizens may indicate with an "X" if they wish to contribute $10 to the newly-created Illinois Non-game Wildlife Conservation Fund, or the amount of the tax refund, if less than that figure, Kenney explained. "The funds raised will be supplemental to normal funding through general revenue," he said.

"This new funding source provides the Department of Conservation with the ability to build on our on-going Natural Heritage program," Kenney said. "It also gives us the ability to develop long-range conservation plans and projects with the assurance that we will have the state resources to support those efforts."

Funds generated through the wildlife check-off legislation will be used for wildlife inventory, resource development, habitat development, information and education programs, and other related areas," Kenney said.

"Since these efforts will be supported by volunteer contributions, we are going to involve the public in the planning process by which specific goals and priorities will be established," Kenney stated.

"Right now we are arranging the details for a public conference to bring together the various conservation groups and interested members of the public in an effort to help us decide just how we can best utilize the new funds," he said. The time, date and place of the conference will be announced in the near future.

Kenney noted that the check-off funds will be applied to programs affecting the wide range of wildlife found in Illinois, including mammals, birds, reptiles, mollusks, amphibians, fish and endangered species. This effort will be coordinated through DOC's Natural Heritage Section.

"The wildlife check-off legislation is a classic grassroots democracy," said Carl Becker, Natural Heritage section manager. "It allows the individual to instruct government on how a portion of his money will be spent.

"Wildlife programs have traditionally been supported to a great degree by sporting license sales and by monies collected on sporting equipment excise taxes levied by the Federal government, and distributed back to the states," Becker said.

"Funds raised in this manner have accomplished a great deal," he said. "The focus, of course, has been on game species and sport fish, with incidental, but real, benefits for other wildlife. This is not to detract from those programs, rather to add to existing wildlife conservation activities but with a different emphasis."

Army recruiters exceed '83 goals

The U. S. Army Recruiting Battalion in St. Louis reports that 5,506 men and women enlisted in the Army in this area during fiscal year 1983, which ended Sept. 30.

Of these, 3,821 joined the active Army, while 1,685 enlisted in the U. S. Army Reserve. Army recruiters within the battalion area achieved 113 percent of their active Army mission and 108 percent of their reserve Army mission.

The recruiters were successful in enlisting more high school diploma graduates than ever before. Eighty-nine percent of the men and women who joined the Army through the St. Louis battalion this year had a high school diploma.

A spokesman attributed the success of local recruiters to "a favorable public opinion of the military in the metropolitan area and increased cooperation from academic and civic leaders." He added that the Army's offer of a wide variety of incentives, such as the Army College Fund, is attracting high school seniors and graduates in increasing numbers.

The Battalion is responsible for Army recruiting activities in southern Illinois and eastern Missouri. It is commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Donald E. Jones.

Nationally, more than 145,000 Americans entered the ranks of the regular Army while nearly 65,400 became citizen-soldiers in the U. S. Army Reserve during the fiscal year.

IP announces weatherization programs for low income homes

Two thousand one hundred low-income residents will receive direct home weatherization help from Illinois Power Co. through a new pilot program. The program was approved today by the Illinois Commerce Commission.

The new program is in addition to on-going energy conservation programs undertaken by Illinois Power Company. Customer assistance activities under way in the early 1980s were increased as a result of the Arab Oil embargo in 1973. The company now invests more than $12 million annually in conservation programs.

The pilot plan approved yesterday consists of two parts — "Program 600" and "Program 1500" — and will last 14 months. It includes the cooperation of community action groups, weatherization suppliers, installers, and lending institutions to help customers use energy more efficiently.

"Program 600" is an intensive home weatherization demonstration designed for 600 low-income residents in two target communities. The cities of Danville and Jacksonville have been selected for this program.

"Program 1500" is a starter program from home weatherization assistance for 1,500 low-income residents throughout 15,000 square miles served by Illinois Power Company, including the Quad-City area.

Each program consists of a home energy audit and a kit of home weatherization materials. There will be no charges for these services. If additional weatherization is recommended for the home, Illinois Power Company will identify material suppliers and installers who will provide a discount price to participants eligible for "Program 600". The utility also will help program participants obtain loans for the purchase of these materials.

In "Program 600," an Illinois Power Company energy auditor-installer will demonstrate weatherization installation techniques while being observed by participants. Each participant then will be given an opportunity to install some of the energy conservation materials while being observed by that these contributions are tax-deductible on the following year's federal income tax form," Becker said.

Becker said DOC is unsure how much money the new bill will generate. He did point out that Colorado collected $300,000 during the first year of their check-off law, and that Minnesota collected approximately $550,000 recently.

"The new Illinois wildlife check-off law provides individuals an opportunity to become directly involved with wildlife preservation," Becker said. "I think many thousands of Illinoisans will discover it to be a very convenient and effective means to support wildlife conservation."

the company representative. Other residents of the neighborhood will be invited to observe. Remaining materials from the weatherization kit will be left in the home.

Income guidelines for both programs are the same as for federal weatherization programs. A family of one who earns no more than $6,075 a year qualifies. Income guidelines go up for larger families, up to a maximum of $16,575 a year for a family of six.

Both programs are scheduled to start this month and end in December 1984.

General assembly approves coal fund

According to Senator Sam Vadalabene (D-Edwardsville), operational support for advanced coal development projects, such as the Allis-Chalmers Kilgas coal gasification project in East Alton, came a step closer to reality last week when the General Assembly approved a $5 million appropriation for the Illinois Coal Technology Development Assistance Fund.

The Coal Technology Development Assistance Act makes available funding for grants to advanced coal development projects and coal development utilization research through the Department of Energy and Natural Resources, but the funds must be allocated through the appropriations process. Vadalabene sponsored legislation to create the act and initiated the appropriation for its operation.

Up to $5 million can be made available in any fiscal year to fund the act through the Public Utilities Revenue Act. Vadalabene says he is confident that the money will be available to provide operational support to these coal projects, in particular to the Kilgas project, in the very near future.

"The Department of Energy and Natural Resources is already in the process of preparing regulations to administer the program authorized through the Coal Technology Development Assistance Act," Vadalabene said. "The state of Illinois has already lent financial support through the Coal Development Bond Act for the Kilgas coal gasification project. I think it is only a matter of time before we also see operational funding approved."

Vadalabene is confident that the governor will soon sign the measure, which provides the $5 million appropriation.

County may take on heat program

By JUDY TAPLIN

Madison County government itself will be one of the applicants to take over the federal energy assistance program for low-income persons in the county, according to a state official.

The program, which helps pay heating costs for the poor, was run by the county Economic Opportunity Commission until Nov. 1, when the state terminated that agency's involvement.

AT ABOUT THE same time, officials in the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs announced that a replacement agency was being sought to run the program.

The state currently is involved in a special audit of the EOC's finances.

Tom Laus, of the DCCA said Friday that, as of last week, eight agencies or groups had indicated an interest in running the program. Applications for running the program are being taken until Nov. 23.

The heating aid program begins Dec. 1, at which time low income persons can apply for the fuel bill help.

LAUS SAID THE eight interested agencies were Madison County; Madison County Senior Service Inc. of Alton; the Madison County Urban League, Alton; the Venice Lions Club; Coordinated Youth Services in Granite City; Catholic Charities in Granite City; Godfrey Human Development Resources Center in Alton and the EOC itself.

Operation of the energy assistance program would be a new venture for Madison County, county director of administration Mary Kane acknowledged.

SHE SAID THE county government decided to apply because county board chairman Nelson Hagnauer is concerned that the EOC's problems may cause needy residents to lose out on the federal funds.

She said the county's Community Development office would operate the program, with help from the auditor's office, if Madison County is the winning applicant.

Noting that the various township governments act as the intake centers for energy assistance applications, Mrs. Kane said the Community Development office's past good relations with the townships would make it easy to work with them on the project.

MRS. KANE said the county plans to make its formal application this week for operation of the program. She said the county has contacted one of the other applicants, the Madison County Urban League - to discuss the possibility of a joint application with that agency.

Mrs. Kane said some additional office help might be needed on a temporary basis, if Madison County is given primary operation of the program.

Although the first day for low income persons to apply for the heating aid is Dec. 1, those who have had their utilities disconnected are being allowed to apply immediately.

Because Madison County currently has no agency operating the program, those persons with disconnected services should call a DCCA toll-free hotline - 800-252-8643 - to apply.

THE SPECIAL state-requested audit of the EOC was to be completed and made public by mid-November. Friday, however, Laus said the timetable has been extended at the request of the EOC.

The audit results will not be known until at least Nov. 21, he said. The EOC had asked for more time to respond to the audit findings, he told a reporter.

The state hopes the audit will show where the EOC spent approximately $230,000 channeled from the federal government through the DCCA for energy assistance in Madison County.

THE EOC transferred the funds into another program - weatherization of low income homes - which the agency still operates, and was later unable to pay the $230,000 to two utility companies involved in the heating bill help, state officials have said.

The EOC owed Illinois Power approximately $185,000 and Union Electric about $54,000, although it managed to pay a small portion of this eventually.

The state, fearing the utility companies would balk at future involvement with the energy assistance program, paid the rest of the bill itself.

GC library sponsors paperback exchange

The Granite City Public Library Children's Department will sponsor "The Great Paperback Swap" from 2 to 4 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 19, at the Main Library, 3001 Delmar Ave.

Children who want to participate may bring their books to the children's department no later than Nov. 17. No books will be accepted after that date. Each book should be brought in a paper bag labeled with both the child's name and the number of books brought. All books must be in good condition and suitable reading material for children in grades K-4. The library staff will check the condition of the books when they are brought in. This swap is limited to paperbacks only.

The paper bag with the child's name on it is his "ticket" to participate. The bags will be kept at the library for the children until the day of the swap.

On Nov. 19, the day of the swap, each child will be able to pick his books from groups divided into basic reading levels. As each child makes his selections, the library staff will check to make certain the correct number of books has been selected.

This is a book exchange only. There will be no books for sale at this time. For more information, interested persons may call the children's department at the library at 876-0550.
